City of Hope to honor humanitarian couple

Bob and Mary Montgomery of Palm Beach will be honored Monday as Humanitarians of the Year during a benefit given by the Palm Beach chapter of the City of Hope. The Hope and Heart luncheon/

Palm Beach eye surgeon Dr. Steve Spector will be honored by Temple Beth El and the State of Israel Bonds with the Israel City of Peace award during a breakfast reception today at the Ramada Hotel Resort.

Spector was born in 1948 in Berlin in a displaced person's camp to parents who had been through the Holocaust. His family moved to France, then to Palestine, and eventually to the United States in 1963. Spector said Israel is the anchor of his heritage and the life-line that maintains the Jewish community. He added that participating in the investment of Israel Bonds is one way to support the Soviet Aliyah.

Dr. Steve Spector is receiving the Israel City of Peace award.

Reynolds Institute for Theatre Training.

Organizing the Hope and Heart benefit are co-chairmen Bobbi Fink and Beverly Savin, both from Palm Beach.

Committee members are Gerry Bogatin, Palm Beach, chapter president; Toby Hill, Lake Worth, gift chairman; Michelle Tagarello, Boynton Beach, decorations chairman; and Miriam Pozen, Palm Beach, reservation chairman. West Palm Beach residents Ethel Isler and Ruth Gingold are souvenir booklet chairmen.

Guest speaker will be Dr. Sanford Shapiro, chief executive officer and president of the City of Hope, located in Duarte, Calif.

City of Hope treats people with catastrophic diseases free of charge, Fink said. It has six Nobel-prize winners in its research department. Doctors there discovered how to perform human bone transplants that cure leukemia in 80 percent of the cases. They have also developed human insulin for diabetics to use instead of animal insulin, which has caused many allergies.

Aaron and Sylvia Zonderman are being honored for their active involvement in the Jewish community.
